BARBARA BULLOCK

This celebrated artist and educator is a lifelong Germantown resident whose work has touched people all over the world.

She received her training in the arts at Fleisher Art Memorial, the Hussian School of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Over the course of five decades, she has produced an important body of work comprising paintings, sculpture and multi-media visual art that will be the subject of an upcoming retrospective at Woodmere Art Museum in Chestnut Hill (09/23/2023-01/21/2024). Rooted in themes of social justice and deeply inspired by African culture and mythology, her work explores profound questions encircling identity, spirituality and the artistic process. Bullock's legacy as an artist is compounded by her commitment to arts education. She is a revered arts educator and advisor who has led classes in museums, schools and even prisons. Twice recognized as a Distinguished Teaching Artist by the NJ State Council on the Arts, she is the recipient of many other notable awards. Her work has been exhibited across the United States, including local LaSalle University's Art Museum and Swarthmore College's List Gallery, and is in the permanent collection of numerous museums and foundations in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
